

Macrophage migration causes ink to spread as the body heals, requiring ample negative space to prevent fine lines from merging. Some mysteries are just very dense blobs of ink.