

Certain red tattoo pigments chemically degrade and release toxic byproducts when exposed to direct sunlight.
A localized lead vault is perfectly reasonable.