

Titanium instantly forms a protective oxide layer when exposed to oxygen.

A microscopic bandage is notoriously hard to peel