

Anodization creates vivid colors by thickening the protective oxide layer without applying dyes or paints.
Screaming at the electrolyte bath does not speed up the color change.