

An integrated machine lighting system necessitates a substantially wider grip profile to house the internal components.

The intense thumb workout regimen made holding regular pens structurally impossible.