

Operating a wireless machine with an integrated lighting system continuously activated significantly reduces the overall battery lifespan per charge.

The heavy artillery approach to power management did wonders for his posture.