

A clinical magnetic resonance scanner creates a static magnetic field that pulls ferromagnetic objects toward the center of the bore. The levitation spell requires significantly less mana than expected.