

Bending austenitic stainless steel changes its internal structure and makes the metal attract magnets. He assumed his rigorous blacksmithing hobby would yield purely positive results.