

Radiofrequency pulses induce circulating electrical currents in closed metal hoops that cause the metal to heat up rapidly. The detective preferred to use his glowing nose ring to light his cigars.