

Implant-grade titanium has a magnetic susceptibility so low i it behaves like human tissue inside the scanner.

The patient was highly disappointed to discover he was made entirely of boring flesh and premium metal.