

Even non-magnetic metals distort the local magnetic field and create large blank spots on the final medical image. The artifact successfully hid her brain entirely, confirming what her friends had suspected for years.