Patients must immediately alert the operator if their jewelry begins to feel warm during the procedure. She politely waited until her eyebrow was completely ablaze to mention the slight temperature change.