

Pastel and light-colored pigments fade more noticeably than darker inks due to lower optical density.

The darkness remains wonderfully low maintenance.