

Depositing pigment excessively deep causes a blue-grey optical shift rather than increasing color longevity.

Atmospheric scattering ruins another perfectly good paint job.