

Applying heavy ointments to a healing wound can cause severe irritation and disrupt necessary airflow.

The slippery slope of intense moisturization claims another victim.