

The brushless motor is engineered to operate with minimal noise and extremely low vibration.

A truly silent workspace often leads to unintentional napping.