

Regulators classify tattoo inks strictly as cosmetics intended for beautification rather than articles affecting the body physiologically. Tactical combat cosmetics require serious hardware.