

Tattoo pigment remains visibly present within the continually renewing outer epidermal layer even years after complete healing.

Some stains stubbornly refuse to respect the sweeping schedule.