

Histological measurements demonstrate that epidermal thickness lacks correlation with advancing age.
The protective packaging is entirely redundant.