

The limiting factor for healing channels through cartilage is the available vascular supply to the tissue.
Invisible rivers dictate the entire process.