

Interrupting the sterilization cycle before the drying phase completes allows residual moisture to wick environmental contaminants through the pouch material.
The fresh spring breeze adds that special finishing touch.