

Polypropylene random copolymer relies on a crystalline fraction to slow deformation while amorphous acrylic deforms readily.

Amorphous plastics perform terribly as structural barricades.