Rigid metal bars concentrate cyclical movement stress directly at the entry margins of oral wounds.

Transferring every chew directly to the nearest nerve ending.