

Scar tissue lacks the flexibility of healthy skin and ruptures under significantly less tension. Bouncing on concrete trampolines requires tremendous optimism and poor spatial awareness.