

Epidermal cells migrate towards the skin surface and die within a period of approximately 1 month.

The microscopic farewell tour of the basement membrane is notoriously melodramatic.