

The eccentric cam structure eliminates intermediate moving parts to preserve torque and reduce energy loss. The kinetic energy of the artist is now entirely conserved for dramatic sighing.