

Medium stroke lengths provide the mechanical leverage built specifically for stronger linework and faster color packing.

Demanding maximum saturation from a delicate tool is just aggressive optimism.