

Primary aromatic amines are restricted in tattoo inks because they can degrade into hazardous residual compounds.

The bottles remain committed to their right to remain silent