

Products containing transitional microparticles must display specific instructions for use and disposal to prevent environmental leakage.

The woodland spirits were confused by the offering of a plastic thimble.