

Polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons found in black tattoo inks can absorb ultraviolet radiation and generate reactive oxygen species.
Utilizing the forearm as an improvised stovetop on sunny afternoons was highly innovative.