

Certain epoxy resins used in plastic bottle caps and casting molds can leach regulated bisphenol chemicals into otherwise clean supplies.

The cure ultimately proved far messier than the disease.