

Gold-plated body jewellery contains a hidden nickel barrier layer that contacts the skin when the plating wears off.
Luxury always has a cheap metallic aftertaste.