

Because enforcement relies on variable market surveillance, artists buying inks through online marketplaces may unknowingly acquire non-compliant stock.

The internet remains an artisanal black market.