

Microorganisms normally regarded as nonpathogenic topically may become virulent when introduced into the deeper skin layers. A quiet neighbor turns into a complete menace the moment they move into the basement.