

Satisfying European chemical concentration limits does not guarantee that a product meets domestic microbiological control standards.
Winning a sword fight against a chemical is useless when a bacterium brings a clipboard.