

The disposal of used personal protection clothing directly in the production area renders packaged products susceptible to contamination.
A nest made of discarded gloves is a terrible place to hatch a fresh design.