

Responsible piercing professionals will decline requests for placements that lack the anatomy to support stable healing.
Arguing with anatomical reality rarely yields victory.