Ferromagnetic metal jewelry interacts violently with magnetic resonance imaging scanners, whereas medical-grade polypropylene remains completely invisible to the magnetic field.

Suspects frequently escape when the lead detective is closely inspecting the magnetic bore.