

Cobalt-chromium alloys are engineered for heavy-wear articulating joints, whereas healing tissue requires the stable passive oxide film of implant-grade titanium. Deploying a heavy artillery friction tank to sit on the sofa is slightly overdoing the armor protocol.