

While highly biocompatible and capable of vivid anodization, niobium is significantly denser and heavier than titanium. Investing heavily in dense metals is a great way to ensure the absolute gravity of your performance is truly felt.