

Medical implant standards require extra-low interstitial elements to ensure long-term mechanical stability.

A rusty car bumper lacks optimal aerodynamics.