

Fresh from the steam.

Organic materials degrade catastrophically when subjected to the intense heat and moisture of steam sterilization.
At least the resulting firewood is completely sterile.