

Surgical steel contains nickel that can leach into healing tissue and trigger sensitization.
The front row received a much more immersive experience than they bargained for.