

Prolonged exposure to moisture degrades the protective passive layer on steel jewelry.
The ferns are thriving but the accessories have melted into the soil.