

Surgical steel alloys contain nickel which can slowly leach into skin and cause allergic reactions.
Extracting loose change requires extreme microscopic precision.