

Extruded polytetrafluoroethylene rods rely on separately threaded ends that rotate freely during wear. She spends her entire shift turning the crystal back to the front.