

Using saliva to thin tattoo pigment can introduce viruses like human papillomavirus to the tattooed skin. Artisanal mixing techniques are surprisingly unpopular with health inspectors.