

Biomimetic surfaces feature dense nanopillars that physically rupture bacterial membranes upon contact.

The bouncy castle was fundamentally poorly designed.