

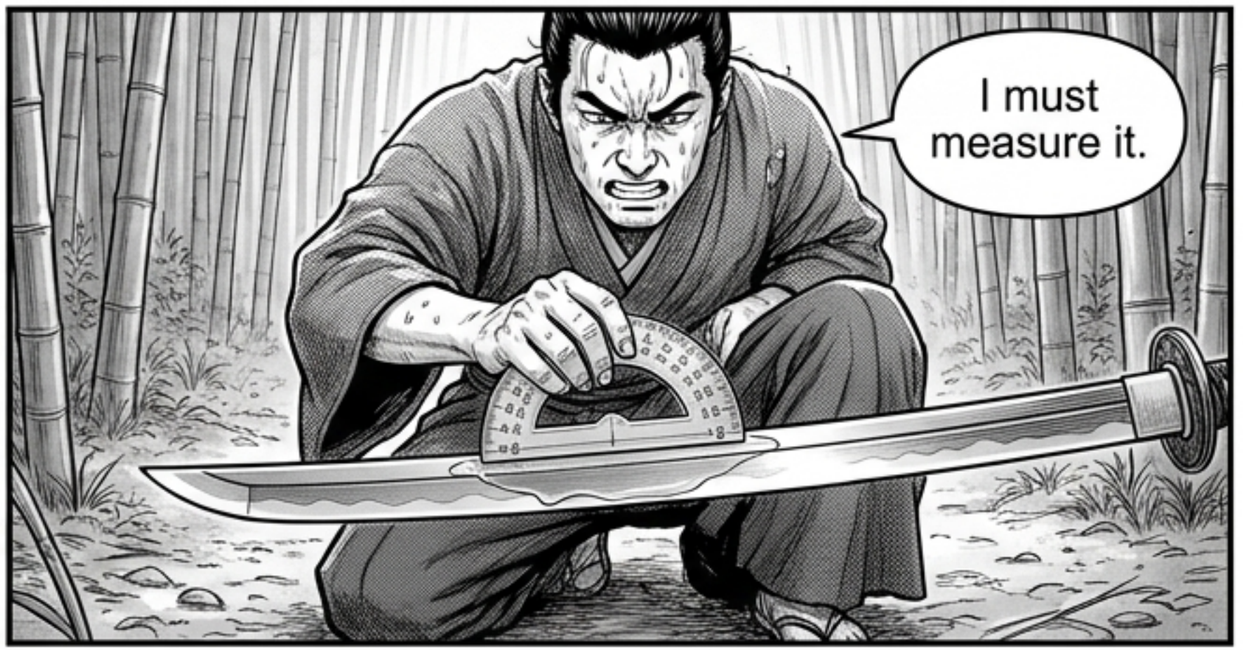
A low contact angle indicates a hydrophilic surface that causes water to spread evenly rather than bead up.



The true path of the warrior involves extensive geometry.