

Outbreaks of mycobacterial infections in tattoo parlours were traced back to unsterile tap water.
Artisanal puddle water really brings out the earthy tones.